The Stock Market.

New York, Dec. 12 .- Stocks opened with a little scare of the shorts under brisk bidding and first prices were fractionally better. Sugar refineries made the greatest advance in the upward movement. On active trading in the leading stocks, a gain of 1/2 to 11/2 was generally scored. Top figures show Union Pacific and sugar each up 13, and Northern Pacific preferred, which sold with the ex-dividend of one per cent, 11/2 up. These prices, however, were not well maintained. and at 11 the market, while active and firm, was fractionally lower than the

Stocks went a shade lower after 11. At noon the market was quiet but Dealings in the stock market after 12 o'clock were marked by a severe raid upon Union Pacific and other leading shares, during which the lowest prices of the day were reached. The depression was of short duration and a sharp recovery occurred, many of the active stocks reaching the best prices of the day on the rebound. While all the improvement was not held, at 2:15 the market was quiet and firm and closed at the best prices of the day.

Preferred Ranging to Imprison

By Associated Press.]

SHERBROOKE (Quebec), Dec. 12.-William W. Blanchard was hanged here this morning for the murder of Charles A. Calkins on the 18th of November, 1889. The drop fell at 9:16, and at 9:30 the surgeon pronounced him dead. The execution was performed by Radcliffe, who hanged Birchell.

Blanchard was a tramp. He became acquainted with Calkins, and they had a carouse in the latter's house, during which Blanchard produced a revolver and boasted of his proficiency with the weapon. Calkins remonstrated, and a scuffle ensued, in and Calkins was instantly killed. At the trial it came out that there was premeditation, but Blanchard asked to be banged rather than imprisoned for life.

Instantly Killed.

Modesto (Cal.), Dec. 12. - Word was received this morning that James Brown was instantly killed at L. M. Hickman's ranch, eighteen miles southeast of Modesto, last evening, by accidentally falling from a hay loft to a rack twelve feet below. Brown struck on his side, and was killed instantly. He was a native of Mississippi, aged 33 years, and was reported to be either a son or a nephew of B. Grats Brown, the Democratic nominee for Vice-President in 1872.

Dublin, Dec. 12.—It came to the knowledge of Leary, appointed editor of the United Ireland by Parnell, and other Parnellites that an anti-Parnell edition of that paper would be issued to-day from the office of the Nation, T. D. Sullivan's paper, and steps were taken to secure an injunction against the Nation's publisher ertheless, the forbidden edition made its appearance this morning. It contains articles written by Bodkin, who was acting as editor of the paper during the absence of William O'Brien, and who was deposed by Parnell when he seized the paper on Wednesday. The article is addressed to O'Brie and calls to every true lover of Ireland the world over, declaring the sole alternative now is "Parnell or home rule, and that home rule is impossible under Parnell's leadership."

The Parnell edition of the paper was issued from the regular office. It quotes a legal decision justifying the seizure of the paper by Parnell, A wagon loaded with copies of th anti-Parnell edition of the United Ireland was driven to the King's intended to send them for distribution in the south of Ireland. As the wagon drew up at the station two men, one of whom had a mask on his face, and the other with a drawn revolver, sprang upon the vehicle, and compelled the driver to proceed with his load to Island Bridge. Arriving there the two men flung all the papers into the Liffey river.

An attempt was made to seize second wagon loaded with papers standing at the entrance of the depot, which probably would have proved successful had not the police interfered to protect their driver, and under their guard the papers were loaded on the train.

Cork, Dec. 12 .- Parnell this morning received the Cork branch of the National League. In an address to the committee he said he looked to the workmen to support him, and that in return he would support them.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon Parnell drove in an open car to the railway station, where he boarded a train for Kilkenny. He was cheered all along the route to the station.

Canon Bryan O'Mahoney has written a letter to Parnell, asking him to call a meeting of his constituents to give him (O'Mahoney) an opportunity to criticise in Parnell's presence his treason to the Irish Parlimentary party.

An Ugly Outlook.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.-A special from Pine Ridge, S. D., indicates the fight between the peace and war factions in Two Strikes' band as more sanguinary than indicated by the Associated Bridge railway station to-day, it being Press dispatches. It says: Yangton Charlie, a full-blooded Sioux, and a the Indian camp in the Bad Lands, report a bloody fight among the followers of the chiefs Short Bull and Two Strikes. Each claimed the leadership and each tried to secure it by force. The result is from twenty to fifty dead Indians.

This report is verified by several friendlies who have been waiting for some time to escape to the agency. As the spies took advantage of the fight to make their escape, it is not known yet which chief conquered.

Large re-inforcements have come from Standing Rock and other agencies. The depredations of the Indians have been extended to the foot of the Black Hills. The Flying Bell herd, owned in the hills, has been captured. It is useless to talk of peace. There has the hostiles to move out of their entrenchments since the peace council was held. None of the promises made then have been kept. There is great excitement here.

It is said when the chiefs returned from the agency council, Two Strikes and his followers favored peace, but Kicking Bear, Short Bull and others, composing a majority of the camp, took a decided ground on the other side. The council lasted several hours, during which the excitement reached the highest pitch and finally broke up in a fight. The troops have received orders to be in readiness to

EDITION

Let I's Make a Move.

The GAZETTE has an abiding faith in Rene; it believes the town has a bright future and in time will make a city, but the present generation may all pass away before the good time comes. That we lack a head to bring out our latent energies, there can be no doubt, and not until the good things of other States that are now engaged in filling up their vacant lands, are taken up and capital begins to hunt other fields, can Nevada hope to realize any benefit unless she puts forth her hands and makes an effort. Washington nor California do not lose an opportunity of attracting the attention of idle capital to their undeveloped resources, while Nevada is not doing anything in that direction, but seams content to sit, like Tom Tilt on a pump handle, with her deserts thirsting for a drink of the precious fluid that is constantly running to waste in a dozen streams in this State. The people of Washington and California see the necessity of becoming great and prosperous and are not leaving a stone unturned to bring about such a condition, while poor little Nevada, with not people enough to make a respectable township in other States, is struggling along, trying to maintain one of the most expensive governments in the galaxy of States, with the men who have taken millions of her hidden wealth to other climes, to beautify and make prosperous other sections, turning a cold shoulder to our urgent appeals. The sooner the people learn to depend on themselves and go to work in a systematic way to invite capital to come here, the sooner we shall get out of the rut we have fallen into. Let the State take a bold and determined stand and say that, at least, a part of the prosperity that is going to other places should come to us, and the battle is half won, This cannot be done, either, by vicious legislation, but by remodeling our organic law and reducing taxes, by dividing the State into reclamation districts, and taking steps to invite capital here to do the work that we are not able to do ourselves: We have money enough to get the thing in shape to present to capital, and let the Legislature do it.

THE American farmer has been well taken care of by the Republican party. Under the fosteringcare and wisdom of the administration, exports of agricultural products have largely increased and the balance of trade has been largely on the side of the American exporter.

According to the report of the Secretary of Agriculture, there has been a very substantial improvement in the market prices of the leading farm products during the past year. The price of wheat advanced from 81 cents in October, 1889, to $1 00 3-4 in October, 1890; of corn from 29 8-4 to 43 cents, and of barley from 63 cents to 78 cents. The total exports of live animals and fowls for the year ending June 30, 1890, was $33,000,000, being an increase of $15,000,000 ever the exports of the preceding year-almost double.

Nearly 200,000 cattle and more than 45,000 hogs represent the increase in the experts of live stock. The exports of butter increased from 15,504,978 pounds to 29,748,049 pounds, the total value of the increase in meat and dairy products exported being $44,000,000. This flattering showing is due to the system or sanitary inspection adopted by the Republican administration, whereby the prejudices of the European consumer against American beef and pork were removed.

The San Francisco Post says: The increased prosperity of the farming element of the country during the past year has demonstrated that the protective tariff policy of the Republican party has not driven away European purchasers of our commodities. American producers and manufacturers have been pretected from foreign competition, while at the same time the demand in the European markets for American products has increased, and at higher prices.

INDIAN MEASUREMENTS,

low Distances Are Computed by the Bed Mes of the West. Savage people are content with units of measure which, though indefinite, answer the purpose of men who have no use for exact knowledge, but who do want to know what comes within the scope of their vision, or of their ability to travel on foot or on horseback. Their ideas of distance will conform to the way in which that distance is to be cov-

We know how natural it is for us to we know how natural it is for us to speak of places as being so many days' journey away, and in crossing the ocean a place was so many weeks' sall dis-tant until recent times. In the East distances are reckoned by the hour, an hour being about three miles. It is not at all strange, then, to find the Indians reckoning in a similar manner.

It is said that the Indian and halfbreed cance-men compute distances on the water by pipes. One pipe is the distance they can paddle in the interval between the haltings they are allowed to make in order to have a smoke. Permission for this halt is given by the person in charge at interval which vary according to circumstances. If the guide is indulgent, he makes the pauses frequent; if the travelors are in a hurry, or the weather is threstoning, fewer stops are made. A "pipe" is, therefore, wholly indeterminate.

A portage is measured by a different standard. If the distance which the goods have to be carried exceeds half a mile in length, it is generally broken by one or more pauses, which are ordered by the person in command of the expedition just as the halt is called for a smoke. The distance traveled between these stops for resting is called a pause. This distance will vary according to the breed canoe-men compute distances on

This distance will vary scoording to the grater or less difficulty of the portage, and its length. A "pause" is understood to mean about one-third of a mile.

The Menomonee Indians of Wisconsin have the usage of dividing long distances into looks. A "look" is the distance between the person and the farthest object he can see in the direction he is going. The first "look" is taken from the point where his journey erina. When he has reached the obt first selected, he from that point elects the object to which his se "look" is taken, and so on. It is needy make this unit of measure uncertain. - Youth's Companion.

GOT EVEN WITH HER.

Small ley's Trick on an Elder Sister Who Had Slighted Him. That was a mean joke played on a young lady of Washington avenue the other evening by a small brother, says to let him go with her for a horseback ride one day, and he spitefully told her he would "get even with her." She had a habit of carrying in her pocket a little silver and gilt powder puff box, and when she feels that her nose needs a touching with the puff she slides it out carefully and under her corsage handker-chief it reaches the dainty features and swiftly and hidden performs its mission. The small boy knew this (small boys are born detectives-on older sisters). and he procured some cigar ashes, and, seking his sister's powder puff case, it was the work of one small moment to empty out the white powder and fill the

A moment later she was smiling serency in her escert's face, and he—his expression was simply in-describable; horror, amazement, sur-prise, all blended in one concentrated glance at the opturned face.

"There is something wrong," he muttered. "Your-your nose is-is gray- wines, eidedly gray

The member in question on the pretty face received a decided upward turn as she exclaimed: "My nose is not gray. What do you mean, sir, by your insult? "But-but it-it really is gray-decidedly gray—deucedly gray; excuse the expression—the-grayest l ever saw in my life."

"You are insane, sir; please take me home." And she rose with a haughty gesture. Together they left the theater, but, womanlike, passing the mirror near the entrance, she took a sly glance at her reflection. Horrors! She paused.
"Why, you are right," she gasped; "my nose is gray. What can it be? Oh, that wretched boy!" The small boy got his revenge—but he goes to a distant college early next week. lege early next week.

FATHER'S DINNER.

The Two Orphane Never Delivered it Their Best Friend on Earth. It was in the C., H. & D. depot in Cincinnati one day when one of the men employed to oil the cars as they came in accidentally fell under the wheels of a moving coach and had his right leg and hip crushed in a horrible manner. He was picked up, says the New York Sun, and laid on some coats spread on the platform and a doctor was soon on hand. He must have suffered intensely, but after the doctor had examined him he coolly asked: "Doctor, how bad is it?"

"Very bad, indeed."
"Will I live?"

"Not more than ten minutes; you are bleeding to death.' "What time is it, Jim?" asked the man of a lellow employe. "Eleven fifty-five," was the answer.

"The children will bring my dinner at sharp twelve. Some of you go and stop them. They mustn't see me die Peor, motherless children — orphans,

I went to the door with others, and we were just in time to stop a boy of eight and a girl of six from coming in. Each had hold of the handle of a basket containing father's dinner, and they were smiling in anticipation of the greeting they would receive. We sent them away with a false story about his having gone home, and the eyes of both were filled with tears of disappointment. The echo of their footsteps could still be heard on the pavement when the father breathed his last.

It is the highest December price of the decade, except 1881, when the average mose to 63.6 cents, that being the only year in a decade in which the final average of condition was worse than that of the present season. The average farm value of the wheat crop is estimated at 84 cents per bushel, against 69.8 cents for 1889. The value of wheat is affected by harvests of other countries, and therefore prices are not entirely governed by the size of the home-grown crop. The price of oats responded sharply to the pressure of the small crop and increased demand, because of the short corn crop. The average is 42.2 cents, against 23 cents last year. It is the highest reported since 1881. Rye, like oats, at 62.9 cents, is higher than since 1881, and the same is true of barley at 64.8 cents. The deficiency in the potate crop has caused an advance in values in all sections of the country. The average is 77.7 cents, as increase of more than 90 per cent. over the prices of the past two years. The returns show slightly higher prices for tobacco than have prevailed since 1887. ### A POWERFUL LIGHT.

By Which Fine Print Can be Read

An English paper says: Usually we look to America for the biggest things on earth, but strange to say, although the Americans are the most extensive users of electricity, the most powerful artificial light in existence is the property of the English Government, and is to be found in a lighthouse on the Isle of Wight. The light is obtained from a carbon lamp of special pattern. The ordinary light is equal to 3,000,000 candles, but a light of 6,000,000 candle-power can be and has been obtained. It is impossible for any one who has not seen it to imagine the wonderful brilliancy of the light, but some idea may be formed from the fact that it can be distinctly seen 45 miles away, and that at The Needles, 14 miles distant, it is quite easy to read very fine print by means of the reflection.

A Railroad Report.

It is reported at Portland, Or., that Huntington bought the Oregonian Railway lines for the Southern Pacific; but that some of the directors would not take the property, whereupon he began extending the road with the intention of making it a transcontinental line, when the Southern Pacific concluded to take the property off Huntington's hands.

DEAR BIRS: I send $5, for which please return a half dozen of your vegetable sarsaparilla. I have moved here from Sierra City, Cal. I took three bottles before leaving, hence I send all the way back to Callifornia for more. It was just before I let Sierra City, about a year ago, that I began to feel very miserable. My skin was very yellow, and I was all pains and aches, especially under my shoulders and in my head. The doctor said it was my liver, and gave me some medicine which relieved me somewhat. One of my neighbors happened in and told me she had started to take Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, and advised me to try it. I did, and with such good effect that I now feel like's new being. I have persuaded one of my neighbors here to take it, so part of this is for her and part for myself.

Is believed to be caused by poisonous mi-asms arising from low, marshy land or from decaying vegetable matter, and which, breathed into the lungs, enter and poison the blood. MET ON THE TRAIL

The Path so Narrow That Neither Could Pass His Fos.

Chose His Own Way-A Thrilling Trag-edy in the Pinal Mountains of

We had followed the right-hand side of the gorge up to noon, when we built a fire and prepared for dinner, writes a correspondent of the Detroit Free Press. At no time were we less than one hundred feet above the bottom, and some-times the height was doubled. I have spoken of it as a gorge. It was one of the great rifts in the Pinal mountains of Southern Arizona - in some places a valley half a mile widein others a narrow, deep and dismal can-yon not more than fifty feet across. Opposite us as we rested, and not over quarter of a mile away, the wall of the canvon was almost straight up and down and entirely clear of tree or bush. It was higher on that side than on oursa fall of two hundred feet to the rocks below. We were sipping our coffee, when we suddenly caught sight of an object moving along the face of the op-posite cliff. We could not see it, but there was evidently a ledge which furnished a foot-path. We at first took the object for a bear, but no sooner had the old trapper got on his feet than he observed: "It's only a mountain pony, boys."

It was a chestnut-colored pony weighing about five hundred pounds, with a very shaggy coat. He was a descendant of the wild horse of the plains, but instead of following them over the prairies he had taken to the hills. His breed used to be as numerous in the Pinals as goats, and they had the company of large numbers of buffaloes which never descended to the valleys.

The ledge must have been a very narow one, for we saw the pony move slowly and with caution. He had come almost opposite us when a second object moved out from behind a rock to the east of us. We at first supposed it to be another pony, but the trapper no sooner set eyes on it than he whispered: "It's a big cinnamon b'ar, and we are going to see some fun!" No sooner had the bear moved out than he was face to face with the pony, though a distance of some fifty feet separated them. The pony threw up his ead and uttered a snort of alarm, while the bear sat up and looked at him. That was not the first wild beast the pony had seen in his roamings through those lonely mountains, but it was the first he had seen under such circumstances. The ledge was not wide enough for him to turn about. What would he do?

The bear was in no hurry. eemed to be sure that he had his dinner safe and perhaps a close view of the pony was a novelty to him. Two of us got ready to shoot, hoping to drive him away, if not kill him, but the old trapper motioned us back and said: "It is the way God ordained; let His rules stand." The pony had perhaps seen us from the first. He now looked over, seemingly in appeal, but he found only pity. He started to back down the trail by which he had come, but he had not moved more than a yard when the idea was abandoned. The trail was too nar-tion, and then looked straight across the gorge into our faces. "God made it so-He made it so!" whispered the trapper, as he heard a row. He advanced to his former posiovement on our part. For perhaps five minutes the bear and the pony faced each other and we could not see that either moved in the slightest. Then the bear began a slow advance. The pony stuck his head out on a line with his body and uttered a sort tle through

"He'd fight if he had a show, but he hasn't got one," whispered the trapper. The pony's under lip fell down and showed his teeth, and his ears were laid back like an enraged cat's. As the bear drew nearer he raised one fore-foot and then the other, and struck them sharply on the rocky path. Nearer! Nearer! Nearer! The bear did not walk, but hitched himself along foot by foot, while he kept his great paws swinging in the air. He evidently suspicioned that the pony would attempt to jump over him. Now they are fifteen feet apart-now ten-now only five. Now the pony utters a scream of affright or anger and the snorts of the bear come plainly to our ears. They face each other for a full minute, and every one of us is trembling as if personally menaced.

Swish! The bear gathered himself and made a rush, roaring loudly as he did so. Quick as he moved, the pony moved quicker. It was death on the trail ahead-death on the great boulders in the bottom of the gorge. He choose the latter, and as the bear rushed he reared up, wheeled to the right, and sprang far out into space with such a cry of terror as human beings have uttered when they went down to an awful death. Peering over the rocks, we saw his dead and mangled body on the cruel rocks below.

Cost of an Ocean Steamer. More than 300 different industries enter into the building of every ocean steamship. To build a 2,500-ton steamship requires 600 men in direct and constant employment, averaging $500 per man. The sum of $30,000 is thus distributed to the trades. To run such a vessel costs about $30,000 outside of the salary list, which is over $40,000. From the steward of an English steamer I learned that the supplies for such a vessel in a trip across the ocean and return are about as follows: Twelve thousand five hundred pounds of fresh beef, 5,320 pounds of fresh mutton, 850 pounds of yeal, 350 pounds of pork, 2,000 pounds of fresh fish, 100 ducks, 50 geese, 80 turkeys, 15 tons of potatoes, 30 ham-pers of vegetables, 230 pints of ice-cream, 1,000 quarts of milk, 11,500 eggs, canned goods, coal and incidentals. Remarkably Fast Bleyeling.

A bicyclist, whose identity concerns no one, was riding his wheel through a portion of France when up came a storm THE A. O. GOLD NOT WANTED.

ions to Its Use in Ordinary Busi

"Do you know that gold is the most unwieldy of all the different kinds of money now in circulation?" said a prominent banker to a representative of the New York Press.

"Why so?" was asked. "Because it is not bankable without areful scrutiny."

"How is that?" "Simply this. Take a greenback, a silver certificate, a gold certificate or a National bank note to your bank and it is received and placed to your credit without delay. Not so with gold. A few days ago a gentleman brought to our bank upward of $3,000 in gold of differant denominations and was much provoked because we would not receive it forthwith and give him credit for the amount the faces of the coin represent ed. This we could not do because the law requires that gold shall be redeemed only at its actual value. Coins carried in the pocket for any length of time naturally lose something in weight by abrasion, probably but a fractional part of a cent on a $10 coin, but it is a loss nevertheless, and therefore bankers can not give credit for gold deposits until the coin shall have been weighed.

"In the case in point my friend took his gold to the Treasury Department and was compelled to wait there for nearly an hour before he could get notes for it. Every coin had to be passed through the scales, and after the weighing process had been completed three coins—two $5 pieces and one $10 piece were returned to him as short in weight. Before returning short-weight coins the department stamps on the face of each a cross. The owner is left to either send the coins to the United States mint for redemption or to again put them in circulation. Eventually the coins with crosses on their faces will go to the mint and be redeemed at their actual value. In many instances there may be more than several cents' short age on $50 worth of coin. Business men, however, naturally object to the inconvenience, and get rid of their gold as fast as possible."

SOME FUNNY LETTERS.

Missives That Break the Monotony of the Commission Man's Existence The life of a South Water street comnission merchant contains more pros than poetry, says the Chicago Tribune. There is no particular inspiration about butter and eggs, cheese or potatoes. Dressed chickens and long-necked, scrawny turkeys dangling from iron nooks in a dingy back room do not appeal to one's artistic sense. These things are the "familiars" of the Water street man, and it is not surprising that he is inclined to take an eminently practical view of life.

Once in awhile, however, a ray of bumor shoots across the dreary tenor of the commission man's existence and relieves the hard, dry prose of the street. Once in awhile, too, the South Water street dealers receive some humorous letters from country customers. Here are a few specimens:

Colonel R. G. Ingersoll is one of the lawyers to whom his profession yields a fortune every year. A quarter of a mill-ion is a small valuation to place upon his receipts, and he is one of the few men who shine either as a pleader or counselor. He has accumulated great wealth, which, says the Chicago Journal, no one who knows him begrudges him. His face and form are familiar to all Wall and Broad street men, and his offices on Wall street, New York, are handsomely fitted up and elegant. They are comfortable offices, just as Bob is a comfortable man. Great numbers of stories are told about him. Here is one guaranteed to be new:

A stranger went to him one day, and without any reference to the matter of the retainer began: "My father died and made a will," and then went on to tell about his trouble with the will.
"Do you understand the case now?"

asked the stranger. "No, sir," responded Mr. Ingersoll, "I do not."

Somewhat embarrassed, the stranger went away. He told a friend of his experience with the philosophical lawyer. "Go back to him," said the friend, "lay a $1,000 bill on his desk and then The advice was followed. He was received as one who had never been in the office before. He laid the big bill down and said: "My father died and made a will-" Mr. Ingersoll was at once interested He interrupted his new client. "How," said he, "could your father die and make a will? Do you not mean that he
